Vetlen Announces New Distribution Partnership with Patterson Equine

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, APRIL 21, 2026, Vetlen Advanced Veterinary Devices (Vetlen), a veterinary innovator specializing in local drug delivery solutions, is proud to announce a new distribution agreement with Patterson Equine, a division of Patterson Veterinary, one of the most respected names in veterinary distribution.

This strategic partnership expands access to the Vetlen Pouch, Vetlen's flagship device designed to deliver sustained, localized antibiotic therapy directly to the site of infection. Through this collaboration, equine veterinarians nationwide will be able to source the Vetlen Pouch more easily through Patterson Equine's trusted distribution channels.

"We're thrilled to partner with Patterson Equine," said Dr. Stephanie Morley, veterinarian and President of Vetlen. "Our shared commitment to improving patient outcomes makes this a natural fit. Together, we're equipping veterinarians with a targeted solution for treating challenging infections, particularly in equine patients."

The Vetlen Pouch is used in both soft tissue and orthopedic cases and is gaining traction among forward-thinking practitioners managing complex wounds and multi-drug-resistant infections. The device was engineered to deliver therapeutics precisely where they are needed. It features a rate-controlled membrane that enables passive diffusion of antibiotics across a concentration gradient—without the need for pumps or batteries.

The pouch connects to a catheter that is exteriorized prior to wound closure, allowing for convenient daily dosing. Every 24 hours, residual fluid is removed and replaced with fresh antibiotics. The device can remain in place for up to 30 days, providing sustained local therapy throughout the treatment period. Once therapy is complete, the pouch is fully emptied and removed through the exteriorization site, like a surgical drain.

With Patterson Equine's national reach and reputation for excellence, Vetlen aims to expand adoption of the Vetlen Pouch and support improved outcomes for horses across the country.

The Vetlen Pouch is now available for order through Patterson Equine representatives and via their online ordering system.
